Overview of the Papers

Creator	Carter, Amon Giles, 1879-1955
Title	Amon G. Carter papers, 1806-1997 (inclusive), 1935-1955 (bulk).
Physical description	204.50 linear ft.
Arrangement	Arranged in four series and one addition: I. Subject Files, 1880-1990. II. Photographs, 1880-1970. III. Memorabilia, 1806-1986. IV. Katrine Deakins Material, 1874-1984. Accession 2007-M-006, 1957-1997. Accession 2011-M-005, 1916-c. 1950's.
Biographical sketch	Amon G. Carter was born on December 11, 1879, in Crafton, Texas. Ceasing to attend school at a young age, Carter focused the rest of his life on his career, beginning with his job as the advertising manager of the Fort Worth Star in 1905. His journalistic endeavors included a long tenure as the owner, publisher, and president of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram . Other ventures included establishing WBAP, Fort Worth's first radio station, and serving as chairman of the first board of directors of Texas Technological College, as president of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, and as director and part owner of American Airways, which later became American Airlines. A philanthropist, Carter established the Amon G. Carter Foundation. He died on June 23, 1955, in Fort Worth.
Summary	The papers document the life and career of Amon G. Carter, Sr. The papers are arranged alphabetically by subject, and they consist of correspondence, financial information, programs, photos, and news clippings. They document the variety of people and interests with whom and with which Carter was involved. The majority of the papers pertain to Carter's business career with companies such as American Airlines, Inc., the Fort Worth Star-Telegram , and WBAP. Sections of the material detail his personal life, especially the papers regarding various members of Carter's family and those describing his friendship with Will Rogers.
Provenance	Gift of Amon Carter Museum in 1999. The museum and foundation still hold some material that relates directly to their offices. The papers had been transferred from the Amon G. Carter Foundation to the Amon Carter Museum in

Biographical Sketch

Reproduced from the Handbook of Texas (online):

Amon G. Carter, newspaperman and entrepreneur, was born Giles Amon Carter on December 11, 1879, in Crafton, Texas, the son of William Henry and Josephine (Ream) Carter. He changed his name as an adult; he named his son Amon Gary Carter, Jr.,<sup>qv</sup> and was widely known as Amon Carter, Sr. He quit school to help his family when he was eleven years old, did odd jobs in Bowie, and later worked in Oklahoma and California. He moved to Fort Worth in 1905 and became advertising manager of the Fort Worth Star the next year. Three years later, with the backing of Col. Paul Waples, he bought the newspaper and merged it with the Fort Worth Telegram. He named it the Fort Worth Star-Telegram,<sup>qv</sup> Louis J. Wortham<sup>qv</sup> was editor. In 1923 Carter succeeded Wortham as publisher and president, and in 1925 he bought the rival paper, the Record, which was published by William Randolph Hearst.

In 1922 Carter established WBAP, Fort Worth's first radio station; it became the first television station in the South and the Southwest in 1948. In 1923 Carter became chairman of the first board of directors of Texas Technological College (now Texas Tech University), where he served until 1927. He was the youngest president of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce. When oil was discovered in North Texas in the 1920s he helped persuade oilmen to move to Fort Worth and encouraged construction of such skyscrapers as the Sinclair, W. T. Waggoner,<sup>qv</sup> and Life of America buildings; he later served as director of the American Petroleum Institute.

One of Carter's special interests was transportation. In 1911 he headed a committee that brought the first airplane to the Fort Worth area; by 1928 he was a director and part owner of American Airways, which six years later reorganized as American Airlines, Incorporated. Before World War II<sup>qv</sup> he helped bring to Fort Worth a huge Convair complex, later to become General Dynamics. In 1952 he persuaded Bell Aircraft Corporation to locate a helicopter plant in nearby Hurst. Amon G. Carter Field, named for him in 1950, was involved in the Fort Worth-Dallas airport controversy.

Carter was noted for his large-scale philanthropy, which was fueled by wealth from the oil business. His first successful well was drilled in New Mexico in 1935, and in 1945 the Amon G. Carter Foundation was established for cultural and educational purposes. Because of his outstanding service to Fort Worth and to Texas, Carter received numerous honors. He was named Range Boss of West Texas in 1939 and Ambassador of Good Will in 1941 by the Texas legislature. He received the Exceptional Service Medal from the United States Air Force and the Frank M. Hawks Memorial Award from American Legion Post 501 of New York City. He was an organizer and director of the Southwest Exposition and Fat Stock Show, president of the Fort Worth Club for thirty-five years, and a contributor to Fort Worth hospitals and civic centers. Many important visitors from business, theater, and public life visited his farm, Shady Oak.

Carter was married to Zetta Thomas, and they had a daughter. He subsequently married Nenetta Burton, and they had a son and a daughter; they were divorced in 1941. Carter subsequently married Minnie Meacham Smith. He died on June 23, 1955, in Fort Worth. Under the terms of his will, the Amon Carter Museum<sup>qv</sup> was established in Fort Worth from his collection of Remingtons and Russells.

Description of the Papers

The papers document the life and career of Amon G. Carter, Sr. Subject files make up the largest portion of the papers and include correspondence, financial information, programs, photos, and news clippings. These files reside in two series. The majority of the subject files are in Series I, while the rest are listed as correspondence in Series III. The papers document Carter's involvement with a wide variety of people and interests. They contain a large amount of correspondence documenting Carter's business career with companies such as American Airlines, Inc., the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, and WBAP. Sections of the material detail his personal life, especially the papers dealing with various members of Carter's family and those describing his friendship with Will Rogers. The papers documenting his son's imprisonment in a Nazi POW camp are especially poignant.

The papers also include a substantial number of photographs. The highlights of the photograph collection in Series II include photos of Amon Carter, his family, friends, and business associates, as well as various politicians and celebrities. The scrapbooks in Series III include additional photographs of Carter and his family as does the material from Katrine Deakins, his longtime personal secretary, in Series IV.

The collection's strength is its breadth of coverage of Amon Carter's multi-faceted career and eclectic interests. His energy, ingenuity, and humanity shine through in the papers.

Series I. Subject Files, 1880-1990

The series includes correspondence, invitations, programs, cards, tickets, blueprints, lists, financial information, photos, and news clippings arranged alphabetically by subject. The series documents the variety of people and interests with whom and with which Carter was involved, including political figures, colleagues, family, and friends. The majority of this series is composed of material, much of it correspondence, whose subjects such as American Airlines, Inc., the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, and WBAP, document Carter's business career. Sections of the material detail his personal life, especially the papers dealing with various members of Carter's family and those describing his friendship with Will Rogers. The papers documenting his son's imprisonment in a Nazi POW camp are especially poignant. The documents reveal Carter's munificence with family, friends, and coworkers in the multiple acts of generosity that he would do for them. The miscellaneous folders that begin with that particular subject's alphabetical letter (i.e. "A-miscellaneous") contain small collections of documents whose amount of material were not large enough to justify having an entire folder devoted to that particular subject. Most of the photographs from this series were removed to a separate photograph series, and most of those folder titles are strongly similar to the folder titles in this series. Some foreign currency bills have been removed to the memorabilia series.

Series II. Photographs, 1880-1970

The series includes prints, negatives, and glass plate negatives of photographs of Amon Carter, his family, friends, and business associates. Photos of politicians, celebrities, and various Fort Worth institutions are also included in the series. Arranged alphabetically by subject, the majority of the photographs in the series were taken between the mid-1930s and the early-1950s. Among Carter's business and local interests, American Airlines, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, and Texas Christian University are most represented in the series. Carter's friend and noted humorist Will Rogers is also featured in the series. Fort Worth Star-Telegram photographers took the great majority of the photographs in this series. Permission to reproduce these photographs must go through the University of Texas at Arlington since they hold the rights to the newspaper's archives. Series III and IV also include photographs of Amon Carter and his family.

Series III. Memorabilia, 1806-1986

This series includes artifacts, biographical information, correspondence, newsclippings, and scrapbook materials relating to the life of Amon Carter. The series is arranged alphabetically by topic or type of material. Among the artifacts, the logbooks stand out as guestbooks that document the many visitors to Carter's residences at Shady Oak Farm and the Fort Worth Club. The correspondence is arranged chronologically and is similar to that in Series I, largely business-related with some personal correspondence mixed in. The newsclippings, included in the inventory under the headings newsclippings, newspapers, and journals and magazines, focus on Amon Carter and/or his business interests. The scrapbook materials include photographs, awards, programs, menus, invitations, and other printed material.

Series IV. Katrine Deakins Material, 1874-1984

Katrine Deakins worked as Amon Carter's personal secretary for thirty-five years. She was a founding member of the Amon Carter Foundation and, with Amon Carter, Jr. and Ruth Carter Stevenson, directed the foundation for years after Carter's death. She was active in the Fort Worth community, serving on the boards of directors of many organizations including the Amon Carter Star-Telegram Employees Fund, the Amon Carter Museum of Western Art, the Fort Worth Osteopathic Medical Center, and the Tarrant County Heart Association. This series includes correspondence, newsclippings, and photographs that document Katrine Deakins' career. The series also contains information about Amon Carter and his family, including a scrapbook of clippings and correspondence from time of his death. The series is arranged alphabetically by individual or topic.
