Rather, the moral feror of the place was lowered, as in the case of hospitals, Jewishness—I know my profession too well for that. I do not believe that the official religion was a result of the attending physicians divvying up kickbacks from patients' fees. This was an absurd joke. The amount of unnecessary surgery at that hospital was shocking. The Housekeeping business of the hospital—opening the house first thing the flowers, to give warning to the members of the house staff—was a joke. Suicide runs in my family. Is there a gene for suicide? My paternal grandfather and sister killed themselves in the late 1960s. He had made at least one attempt at suicide in his 50s. He had used tranquilizers and sleeping pills. My reading in those uneventful, painted hours in the morning turned to what Camus once described as the central question of the twentieth century: whether or not to commit suicide. As a physician, I had the power to prescribe seditia or to commit suicide. As a patient, I was seized by an unmitigating black despair.

to show me the way to redemption and mercy through His atonement and the power of His grace, for I had no faith in the church or the state, and I was lost.

I had been to church, but I had never found the peace of mind that I was looking for. I had been to confession, but I had never felt any real change. I was still lost.

Then, one day, I had a moment of clarity. I realized that I needed to find a way to get out of this mess. I went to church and I dropped to my knees in prayer. It was then that I realized that I needed to find a way to connect with God. I began to pray daily, and I felt a sense of peace and contentment.

I began to read the Bible, and I realized that the teachings of Jesus made sense. I began to understand that the love of God was the key to finding my way back to my family and to the people in my community. I began to feel a sense of purpose.

I decided to become a Christian, and I began to live my life according to the teachings of Jesus. I began to help others, and I began to find joy in helping others.

I began to see the world in a different light, and I began to see the potential for change. I began to see that I could make a difference in the world.

I began to see that I could be a part of something greater than myself. I began to see that I could be a part of God's plan for the world.
falling to believe would condition me to an entirely different approach to my values and my mission. For I agree with what Hume points out, that the concept of the will is in itself a kind of moral principle. For there is no such thing as a moral principle, and I repeat this to myself, I have found myself forever on the charity of human beings...So I have found myself forever on the charity of human beings...

Like Simone Weil, I have found myself forever on the charity of human beings...
